Properties of the Power-Normal Distribution

21 Moments One can show that the r th moment in the PN scale is a non-linear function of the means and variances in the transformed scale When $\lambda > 0$, we have $E(X^r) = Z \int_{-\infty}^{\infty} (-1/\lambda) (\lambda y + 1)^{r/\lambda} \phi(y) - \mu \sigma dy d\sigma$ (2) In this section, we obtain several more useful forms for the moments of a PN distribution

For $\lambda = 0$,

Lecture note on moment generating functions gather all the moments of a random variable X into a single power series (ie Maclaurin series) in the variable t It is defined to be $M_X(t) := E(e^{Xt}) = E\left(\sum_{k=0}^{\infty} \frac{X^k t^k}{k!}\right)$ Thinking here of the t as a constant, at least from the perspective of taking expectations, we use the linearity of expectation to conclude that $E(e^{Xt}) = \sum_{k=0}^{\infty} \frac{E(X^k) t^k}{k!}$

214 Classification of forces: External forces, constraint forces and internal forces When analyzing forces in a structure or machine, it is conventional to classify forces as external forces; constraint forces or internal forces External forces arise from interaction between the system of interest and its surroundings Examples of external forces include gravitational forces; lift or drag
